SHOULD RECOGNIZE THE STRIKEBREAKERS

"When you go along the Waikiki road and King street about 3 o'clock in the morning and find the streets alive with Hawaiians on their way to catch the car to get to the Oahu Railway depot to go out on the strike-breakers' train for the plantations, it makes me feel that when the strike over the planters should take care of as many of these men as possible."

So said Supervisor J. C. Quinn yesterday afternoon.

"These strikebreakers are backing up the planters in more ways than one. And when you come to consider that these men are getting up at 2 o'clock every morning in order to get out in the sugar cane fields at 7 o'clock and that they do not reach home again until 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening, thereby giving about eighteen hours every day to the opportunity to earn $1.50 for their day's labor, they are entitled to consideration. I trust that in the reorganization after the strike these men will be given responsible positions around the plantation."

JAPANESE BAND GIVES AUDIENCE A SURPRISE

A large audience heard the band of the Japanese flagship at the Moana Hotel last evening and gave generous applause after each number. The music was a revelation to many in the audience, and it was difficult to believe that the excellent renditions were produced by Japanese. It was a musical treat throughout.

HONOLULU ELKS CAST
ON A DESERT SHORE

"Doe" Frear, George Martin, Victor Hurd, Davy Crockett, Bert Lloyd, Louis Horner, Harvey Grant and then some, which means many others. The Mokoli was laden with good things to eat and other things to take the place of water which is said to be not good on Rabbit or Bird Island. They took steamer shawls along and fishing tackle and guns and when the good steamer sailed it looked like a pirate's cruise.

They had a good time during the night and sleep was only possible after some of the liveliest spirits had been downed and quite reigned over the decks. Early yesterday morning the bunch was awake and preparations were made to land on Rabbit Island. The water was rather rough, but as landings had been made before, the preparations went ahead. Two boats were got out, one filled with provisions, including ham, sandwiches, legs of mutton, butter, canned stuff and lots of other tempting edibles, including a big keg of Primo. Two men undertook to get the stuff ashore. The crowd piled into the other boat and the start was made for the shore.

But alas and alack the provision transport got mixed up with some big waves and the rocks which line the shore and before a rescue could be attempted the boat was stove in, filled with water, the lighter provisions floating away and the heavier stuff going to the bottom, while the boat piled up on the shore a wreck.

But everything was not lost, for the keg of beer floated nobly on the crests of the rollers and after some difficulty this was rescued and taken ashore. But imagine a crowd of lively Elks ashore on an islet with only a keg of beer for company. They had not had anything to eat since the night before and breakfast perforce consisted of sundry and divers cups of foaming larger without ice.

However, they fished, thinking they might find food in the sea, but only one fish was caught. On the return to the boat one of the party remembered that a fine bunch of bananas had been left aboard and they had visions of a feast after all.

But alas and alack, again. The bananas were found in a crushed and miserable state and investigation showed that the captain had snoozed part of the night on that precious bunch of bananas and squeezed them out of all semblance to bananas or anything else. There was nothing else to do but up anchor and return to Honolulu for food. The party landed on the dock at 1 o'clock sharp and three minutes later charged into the Grill where the air was filled with shouts for beefsteaks smothered with onions and mushrooms, and—
